Name: __________ __________
Grammar Refresher #2
I know commas, apostrophes, and pronouns are very exciting, but we have even more exciting items coming next week. Before we move on to other things, I thought having a refresher assignment for you to work on would be a good idea. This is due on Wednesday. Enjoy.

Pronouns!
Circle the pronouns in each of these sentences. There may be multiple instances of pronouns.

1. Soon after, William sent Jill the link to her entry; she found the error and reported back to him.

2. Jill and Scott got married on her daughter's birthday.

3. They went to Chicago to visit his parents and catch a Cubs game after the honeymoon.

Indicate the case which each pronoun takes on... (subject, object)

4. Olivia arrested her suspect before another crime could be committed by him in New York City.

5. Starbuck chased the Cylon down the hall; afterward, she celebrated her victory with a drink.

6. While Toni was sick, Meghan and me gave approval to other student's panel proposals.

Indicate the appropriate form of the pronoun in each sentence.

7. Our parents asked Janine and I/me to bake a cake for the Christmas party our church was having.

8. Who/whom did you ask to go to the dance with you?

9. I wonder who/whom committed the crime?

Commas!
Combine these independent clauses using coordinating conjunctions in parentheses. You may have to add or subtract a word.

10. Dr. Estes was on sabbatical last year. She still taught a class online. (but)

11. Dr. Bluemel shunned the new professor who replaced her best friend. She did not speak to her at meetings. (nor)

Correct the use of commas in these sentences. Some of them may be correct already.

12. The English department uses adjuncts to teach composition rhetoric, and basic skills.

13. Dr. Vetere, a vibrant and energetic scholar and lecturer, is up for tenure this year.

Psst! I have more on the other side!
Apostrophes!
Change each word or phrase in parentheses to its possessive form. You may, or may not, have to rewrite or add words to the sentence.

14. Michel (Houellebecq) new novel will be out in America soon.

15. Gender Trouble is (Judith Butler) most famous work.

16. Butler recently wrote a piece for The Guardian about the walkout on the (University of California's) campuses in September.

Semicolons & Colons!
Pick the correct form of punctuation for each sentence. Some could be using commas too...

17. Emma finally asked Jane the question that had been nagging at her soul for weeks “will you go to the prom with me?”

18. Willow lied when she testified “I was never a client of Inara's organization.”

19. Henry Clay's The Missouri Compromise of 1820 was a solution for slavery being legal in certain parts of the north and south however J.C Cahoun's Doctrine of the South argued for slavery legally permitted in territories.
